ACADEMY NAT. SCI. PHILA. ACC. COLL.

Feb 20 Started from Salem N.J. for Washington D. C. and vicinity for the egg of Bald Eagle to be in company with E. J. Court.

Feb 21 Went to Annapolis Md and found one nest containing ½ being incubated by the bird although the egg was perfectly fresh. walked about nine miles this day.

Feb 22 Took the train for Quantico Va where we anticipated finding five nests viz/ Quantico, 2 Cherry Hill and two at Free Stone. Securing a row boat we rowed up Quantico Bay and found that the tree had been [illegible] cut down by lumbermen but, across the bay we found one on Cherry Hill placed near the top of a dead smooth chestnut tree without a vestage of bark theron which stood about 2/3 up on the side of a steep hill birds were about but did not seem to be setting climbing up the tree via; a small black oak and swinging over to main tree I soon had one more set but only one egg this time, and perfectly fresh. After tromping about for half an hour we sighted this same nest and walked back only to find our mistake, Mr Court thinking it was another one. This was a little aggravating to say the least as the hills were so steep it seemed harder to me than climbing trees.

After tramping and tramping again through the mountain pastures in looking for the other nest without success, we were nearly lost when we came upon a small cabin occupied by a white family who told us we were near a saw mill. Finding this we inquired for the Bald Eagle nest but no clue but we found out we were very near the Richmond

Fredericksburg & Potomac R.R. Co.
Washington Southern Ry. Co. at Myron Va Railroad name Chevy Hill Here we heard that the nest we were last looking for had been blown over with the tree.
This about completed the days work after having walked about fifteen miles.

Feb 22: Looked for a nest which proved to be a fake but got wet in the meantime by it coming on to rain, crossing over R.R. Bridge & track called Free Stone. We saw some very large pine trees and in one was one of our deserted nests about 70 ft

39.40 Ave. 611 ft. for 16700 ft.

The Lure of the Wild in Underwater

Jan 23 left Salem N.J. and at 8 P.M. Philadelphia Pa. on Steamer Lexington of Merchant and Miners Transportation Co bound for Savannah Ga. Heavy ice in the Delaware River on way out and by the morn we had cleared the capes, the ocean was as placid as the waters of a lake with a slight swell. Herring and Laughing gulls and probably a Leach's petrel were noted Jan 25 another pretty day a little more rolly. noted in evening a small light colored shearwater at night fall, and three myrtle warblers struggled to the ship partly exausted from their flight so far away from land being fran so far away from land being from 15 to 25 miles to sea.

Jan 26 Bright and early we entered Savannah River on way up we saw several Cormorants two Gt. Blue Heron one specie of Wild Duck. While standing on the Starboard side of our vessel she blew a salute, looking to port a woman was standing on the veranda of a cottage waving a handkerchief. whereby hangs a story, several years ago her sweetheart went to sea and never returned so in faithfulness to his memory she swings a red lantern by night and waves her handkerchief by day to nearly every passing vessell.
Jan 27 Around the dock Kingbirds and Western Laughing gulls were carouting Jan 28. With our old friend Prof D.
Berry whom most of you know through the columns of this Paper, off to the woods we went. Pines were predominant and Cypress was next in plentifulness of the trees while the Spanish Moss hung in festoons We identified the following birds most of them were ones I was acquainted with just spending the winter like myself. I will give the common name used by the A. O. U. in plain English as that is the language we generally speak and if we are to understand in this world, life is too short to ponder over Latin names who they have to be repeated if just and who knows what they are right yet.
one and Legged Sandpiper,

Phoebe, Red Tailed Hawk, Horned Owl Bob White, Ten × Warbler, Junko, Vulture, Red Crown Robin, Buckingbird, Brown Thrasher, 2 or 3 kinds 2 Mourning Doves, 2 Flickers, 1 Woodpecker Sparrows Several / White Eyed Vireos, my 11th Warbler, Fox Sparrow Black Vultures, Hermit Thrushes and a large flock of Meadowlarks. Heard the Jay and English Sparrow, also Carolina wren Feb 3 Went with Prof Wells Hervie to Tybee Beach in quest / Eagles and was pointed to two Islands where they were probably there next we noted the following birds Herring gull, Royal Tern, Willett, Marsh and Yellow throat, Red Tailed Hawk, Myrtle Warbler, Spoon / Oyster, Louisiana Heron, Savannah, Song and English Sparrow Cardinal, Buckingbird, Meadowlarks, and Turkey Vulture
Feb 4 When I arose I found the sky overcast, damp and chilly, a slight shower soon followed, the wind N.W. I decided it would not rain long with the wind that direction, I made for the train which takes you to Tybee Beach a distance / 18 miles / procured a rowboat which I had previously engaged as the tides were in prime that stood in / Seaside and could only be reached that way. Was expecting company on the 7:30 train but none came in sight so I pushed out alone, the wind was hurling it up, the tide was flowing, called spring tide here in this vicinity, if these forces were greater than my energies / had a fine / sport of being blown out to sea in a small open 16 ft boat or else upon the shoals, yes I held my own I saw I was gaining a few inches by rowing objects on the shore and at the same time I was getting to the lee of the offsets shore back of the reeds, here I had easy pulling water, I reached a bend which brought me face to face with natures elements, I shed gloves and overcoats and renewed the battle, I won, again in lee of the shore again I soon docked to Island of Eagle or ye Owl, deserted, the old adage, up a tree pine about 50 ft easy to climb, across to the South I saw my other two nests on the other Island, in a half hour I was to nest of a Bald Eagle at home, dead pine 75 ft up 45 ft straight away no limbs, tree had been dead long enough for most of the bark to peel off it disturbed much, I went up two funny young about 5 days old peeping like little chicks, Wild Duck over the hill I saw for [illegible] and of seven nests I have climbed to this season all showed evidence of the Wild Duck died exclusively for winter and early spring. The old birds made very little resistance I took them as I [illegible] they were [illegible] [illegible] I could
